Genoa Township Land Conservation Association

The Genoa Township Land Conservation Association (GTLCA) is a nonprofit, all-volunteer organization that works with homeowner and concerned township residents to preserve open space and protect the natural and scenic resources found in the community. The wooded ravines and old growth forest in the area represent some of the last natural topography in the township. GTLCA is committed to work closely with all public officials to support its purpose and to encourage community participation in all preservation efforts.

The mowed-grass walking paths at Covington Meadows wind through 47 acres of preserved meadowlands, filled with wildflowers, prairie grasses, deer and many birds and small animals.
